WORKING PEOPLE and THE EU

There are 23 million unemployed workers in the EU.

The EU is the world's lowest growth area, its economy is stagnating and the euro is collapsing.

EU supported attacks on workers' rights have recently caused huge strikes in France and Belgium.

None of the key decision makers in the EU are elected by anyone, nor are they accountable.

The most influential voice in the EU is the corporate employers' lobby called the Roundtable of Industrialists.

Since Britain's membership of the EU we have lost most of our industrial base, our coal and fishing. Agriculture has been run down and EU based companies have bought up our utilities.

The EU demands limited expenditure on public services and the privatisation of public services. The EU would like to get our schools, the BBC and NHS fully privatised.

The free movement of labour in the EU drives down wages, deskills countries and breaks up collective bargaining.
